

Award-winning short story writer and English major at Rollins College in Winter Park, FL. Has written children's chapter books including Mooncalf and The Pocket Fairies of Middleburg; The Long-Promised Song, and Zip-pityzern's: A Collage.

Beyond the Strandline is a work of young adult fiction and Zern's first full-length novel. A longtime fan of "prepper" and futuristic survival novels such as Pat Frank's Alas Babylon, Zern hopes this book will inspire a new generation to imagine the ramifications of collapse and to "prepare every needful thing." When she is not writing fiction, Zern grows flowers, butterflies, grandchildren, rabbits, chickens, and horses in beautiful Central Florida. Oh my!

"Got Reviews?"

Presented by Linda Zern

An Amazon employee, when asked, "What's the most helpful thing an author can do to improve conversion of their book page?" told Tim Grahl, book-launch.com:

"By far, the most important thing an author can do is get more customer reviews."

"Got Reviews!" is a discussion of how to organize a launch of your book with 25 + reviews and the ethics of various methods of generating feedback. Reader reviews on the buy pages of online bookstores and the use of advanced reader copies to build buzz and broaden a book's appeal can be invaluable. Topics include: ARC reviews, using reviews (both positive and negative), writing reviews, and making the technology work for the author.

Since 2008, The Florida Heritage Book Festival and Writers Conference has brought more than 200 nationally known authors and writers to teach, network, and enjoy time in beautiful St. Augustine, Florida. The Festival includes 20+ free presentations by well known authors with book signings and an author's marketplace.

All September 23rd Festival events are free and open to the public.

Call for Submission: Holidays

Perry Como's 1954 recording of "There's No Place Like Home for the Holidays" is a perennial favorite, reflecting our deep-seated urge to return to a simpler time during the hectic holiday season. Happy memories of holidays from years ago tend to center on family, friends, and food. Our modern holiday season begins with Halloween, builds towards Thanksgiving, reaches its feverish peak with Christmas and Chanukah, and ends on New Year's Eve. The Space Coast Writers' Guild's forthcoming anthology, Holidays, is a collection of stories filled with fond recollections of holidays past and present. Whether it's ice skating on frozen ponds at Christmas, dressing up in amusing costumes for Halloween, or eating too much turkey at Thanksgiving, Holidays captures the best (and worst) of times. Submit your work by Friday, September 8, 2017.
